place did not care for her very much, and that they did not like her.

Mr. Bradley remarked that it was peculiar that a number of cars which were passing along Eastern Avenue that night returning from a Fireman's Parade, did not hear or see the shooting, as there were more cars passing along the Avenue that night than there has been in quite some time, and it would seem if the thing happened there, some of the people going along in the cars would have heard it.

Mr. Bradley told Operative about a Dr. Long (who is a medical examiner in New Brunswick, N.J.) saying that the thing would have been all settled now, only some other doctor got into a fight with him (Dr. Long) and then this paper called "The American," worked the thing up and made a whole lot out of it.

Upon leaving the vicinity of the crab-apple tree and parting with Mr. Bradley, Operative proceeded to the railroad station and boarded a train for New York City, and discontinued.
